

Ashtabula County LOCAL FOOD GUIDE

9th Edition - 2026

USA 250th Anniversary Edition

Thank you for your interest in the Ashtabula Local Food Guide. This publication is now in its 9th edition. We are grateful for the continued and growing interest in local food. This year the conversation around local food systems feels especially important. With uncertainty around world events, rising food costs, stalled fertilizer shipments, and concerns around potential supply chain disruptions, many people are looking for local solutions to global issues. This guide provides a roadmap to find a farm near you.

In the center section of this guide is an activity. Please take the time to complete it and consider how you can shop differently. Be sure to use the link to the map on page 27 to find the farm nearest you.

This year we added the following Farmers Markets:

- Andover Farmers' Market.....pg. 5
- Fat Sally's Farm and Flea Market ..pg.6

And the following farms:

- Ebenezer Stone Acres.....pg. 12
- Flying Z Farmpg. 14
- Homestead Acres.....pg. 16
- Stevenson Farm.....pg. 30

Excitingly, we also added a new poultry processor to the Meat section on page 34. Bucks Poultry Processing and Supply has opened their doors in Conneaut and provides a very needed service to the local food community– poultry processing! Previously, farmers had to drive over 2 hours to have their bird processed. Now they can do that right here at home. Please be sure to look at their listing!

Also excitingly, we added a restaurants section on page 48. This reflects a renewed and growing interest in sourcing locally. And, we've expanded the Friends & Neighbors Section on page 50. Be sure to take the time to read this guide and share this information with friends and family and visit a new farm this year!

Sincerely,

The Ashtabula Local Food Guide Team

Ann Rapose, Kathy Presciano, and Julie Wayman

Finding Local Food Activity

Changing your buying behavior can be challenging. Having a plan can help you be more successful. In this activity, you will identify which farms offer items you already use.

1 . Make a list of the whole food, unprocessed items you buy most frequently. Example: garlic, eggs, tomatoes, lettuce, etc.

2. Now identify farms where those items can be purchased using the guide and/or map. Use your phone to open the map by scanning the QR Code or online at www.go.osu.edu/ashtabulalocalfoodmap

Also note the season the are available. Refer to the seasonality chart on the back cover as needed.

Item	Available at	Season
beef	(Farm Name)	all year

3. Identify which farms or farmers markets are closest to you and note their name and hours below:

4. Be sure to visit a farm, farmstand, or farmers' market this summer!

Resources

In this section we highlight the many organizations that help support local agriculture, gardening, and healthy food systems. Please check them out and get involved!

Ashtabula County Beekeepers Association

Interest in beekeeping and honey production has exploded in Ashtabula County! Many honey producers are members of the Ashtabula County Beekeepers Association, which was founded in 1889. The organization promotes the scientific study of beekeeping, pollination, honey production, marketing and disease control. Members are active with beginning and advanced beekeeping classes, field days, monthly meetings, informative newsletters, an information table at the Ashtabula County Fair, Ag Day, and more. For more information, find on the web at ashtabulacountybeekeepers.org or on Facebook at: www.facebook.com/AshtabulaCountyBeekeepersAssoc Cosponsors of the Northeast Ohio Pollinator Symposium.

Ashtabula County Ag Day

Where does your food come from? Each May all first graders in Ashtabula County discover the answer when they are invited to get up-close with farm animals, crops, fruits and vegetables at the county's youth agricultural education event called Ag Day. Sponsored by OSU Extension and Ashtabula County Farm Bureau, this event teaches nearly 1000 first graders about local food, bees & honey, milk, tomato growing, maple syrup and more from 300 volunteers of agricultural organizations. To learn more about ag day, please visit:

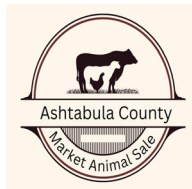

www.go.osu.edu/ashtabulaagday

Ashtabula County Community Seed Libraries

Seed Libraries house vegetable, herb, fruit and flower seeds for public use. The aim is to help make healthy food accessible and to build up a community seed stock of locally adapted seeds. Currently seed libraries are located in all of the county's libraries.

Visit <https://redbeetrow.com/seed-libraries> for a full list of locations and information about seed saving.

Ashtabula County Junior Fair Market Animal Sale

Saturday, August 15th at 11:00 am

(registration at 10:00 am)

Ashtabula Fairgrounds– in the Show Arena

Through your purchase of Cheese, Turkeys, Chickens, Ducks, Rabbits, Goats, Hogs, Lambs, Dairy Beef Feeders, Beef Steers, Dairy Steers, Beef Feeders, you will be helping support two unique agricultural education programs, 4-H and FFA. Members of these organizations are learning to produce food for your table. It is not as simple as it seems. Not only do these members learn how to properly care for these animals, but they are also learning business skills. Feeder project go home to the farm with the buyer while market animals will be processed for the freezer.

Ashtabula County Technical & Career Campus

Environment & Natural Resources Program

Ken Noble 440-576-6015 x 1128

ATECH offers high school students the opportunity to, "explore and understand our natural resources, forests, rivers, and streams while working alongside state and local professionals; Use advanced technology and equipment to design and grow fruits, vegetables, and flowers for personal and commercial use." With several greenhouses, ATECH students hold a plant sale each year in the spring. Look for it in May!

Ashtabula Local Food Network

Ashtabula Local Food Network is a local food networking group comprised of stakeholders from across the community including local farmers, local food enthusiasts, educators, activists, farmers market managers, gardeners and more. We meet quarterly to discuss what is happening individually and collectively in local food and discuss projects that would benefit our community. For more information, contact network chair Julie Wayman phone: 440-576-9008 or email wayman.31@osu.edu

Healthy Ashtabula County

Healthy Ashtabula County is our County's community health improvement process. It is an ongoing effort that brings together County government agencies, County hospital systems, minority health programs/initiatives, advocacy groups, academic institutions, community-based service providers, and other stakeholders to achieve optimal health and well-being for all Ashtabula County residents. You can read more and access resources including recipes on their website: www.healthyashtabulacounty.com

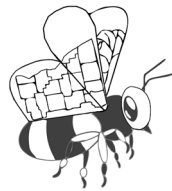

Healthy Roots Community

Healthy Roots is a 501 c 3 non-profit, centered in Ashtabula County, whose purpose "is to promote a resilient local food system by supporting local farms, encouraging new farmers, and increasing access to local food and farm products. This organization will also work together to address food equity, community education, and promote community health." Current projects include a food hub feasibility study and peer learning opportunities for farmers.

Northeast Ohio Pollinator Society (NEOPS)

NEOPS is a non-profit organization started by the Ashtabula County Beekeepers Association, Ashtabula County Master Gardeners, Ashtabula OSU Extension and Ashtabula SWCD. The organization's goal is to educate the public about the critical role pollinators play in our food system and how individuals can assist in building up pollinator numbers by adding habitat. They do this through a winter webinar series and a summer pollinator festival. More information can be found at: <https://nehiopollinator.org> or Contact: Suzanne Westlake 440-576-4946 nehiopollinator@gmail.com
